12. Examining the town flood resistance plan looking for any inconsistency that could be brought in line with the state's flood resiliency plan., assessing new flood prone areas that we became aware of that sustained considerable damage from tropical storm Irene. To asses these area's to help evaluate further issues should a storm of that magnitude happen again. To better evaluate new building permits to minimize loss of property, does not impair flood plains or stream corridors. To insure that new development is reasonably safe and accomplished in a manner consistent with the publics well being. To also address issues of flooding historic buildings in the village of Halifax that are in a low lying area of Branch Brook.
